Ensuring that every child has the option and access to receive higher learning is vital to equity of education. The Relume Foundation sets out in its mission and vision statement to improve educational opportunity for students who think all hopes is lost.

Why we do what we do.

There is no greater way to help a child achieve than to provide them with a quality education.

Education changes lives and a good school puts you in the way of more opportunity. However, getting to good schools involves standardized test like the SAT.

Chats with students reveal that not all can afford a special tutor for the SAT prep class even though they wished they could hire one. More also they wished they do better in their subjects like Maths, English and other science courses.

Hear what some of them said;

Well, "I am a struggling student and my parent can't afford it because they can't make much money to do so. I would love the Free SAT prep and I wouldn't take it for granted if considered".

Another said "we are immigrant and my parent doesn't make much money. But, I want to do well in my Maths and English so if I am considered for the free SAT prep I wouldn't take it for granted".

All this and lots more gave birth to why we decided to help out in giving hopes to the student it might cost a fortune to afford. We are running with our mission and vision statement.

SAT is one of the major criteria that colleges and universities use when they make acceptance decisions for incoming college freshman and earning a high score is critical for a chance at earning a college admission and scholarships.

Organizing free SAT was one major way of bringing hope to the student that wished they had enough money to pay for SAT tutors and want to do well in their subjects and get a high score.
